Chief, Division of Hematology-Oncology
Deputy Director, University of Pittsburgh Cancer Institute
University of Pittsburgh School of Medicine

Barry C. Lembersky, MD
Clinical Professor of Medicine
University of Pittsburgh School of Medicine

Program Goal:
To provide a comprehensive overview of topics of greatest importance as presented at the 2016 ASCO Conference.

Target Audience:
Oncologists and other health care professionals working with individuals with or at risk for cancer.

Course Objectives:
Upon completion of this conference the participant should be able to:

- Integrate new evidence into everyday clinical practice, thereby improving the quality of care being delivered to cancer patients.
- Implement practice changes in a variety of treatment options for solid tumors, including lung, breast, melanoma, colorectal, non-colorectal GI, and GU cancers.
- Stimulate innovative strategies for new and/or additional research related to treatment and/or prevention.
- Recognize the implications for practice change in both the academic and community practice settings.

Tuition:
The registration fee will be waived for UPMC employees and its affiliates. The fee for all other regional health care professionals (non-UPMC) is $50.00. Included with the fee are course materials, continental breakfast, buffet lunch, and continuing education credit. Payment must be made at time of registration. Please see last page for registration details.

The Americans with Disabilities Act Information:
Participation by all individuals is encouraged. Advanced notification of any special needs will help us provide better service. Please notify Mary Kate Egan of your needs at least two weeks in advance of the program by calling 412-623-3651 or emailing eganmk@upmc.edu.

The University of Pittsburgh is an affirmative action, equal opportunity institution.
